1 Purpose

This policy outlines how we expect our employees to dress at work. Please note that your appearance matters when you represent Norvane Systems in front of customers, visitors or other parties. An employee's appearance can create a positive or negative impression that reflects on our company and culture. The dress code was agreed with the Works Council (Betriebsrat) and complements section 2 of the Employee Code of Conduct (NS-HR-POL-001).

2 Scope

This policy applies to all our employees, wherever they work. It also applies to contractors and temporary agency staff on our premises, and to everyone who attends customer meetings on our behalf.

3 General rules

These dress code rules always apply:

- All employees must be clean and well groomed. Grooming styles, clothing and accessories dictated by religious or ideological beliefs, ethnicity or disability are not restricted.
- All clothes must be work-appropriate. Clothes that are typical for workouts and outdoor activities (for example sports kit and beachwear) are not allowed.
- All clothes must project professionalism. Clothes that are too revealing or inappropriate are not allowed.
- All clothes must be clean and in good shape. Discernible rips, tears or holes are not allowed.
- Employees must avoid clothes with printed slogans or images that are offensive or inappropriate.
- Where safety rules require specific clothing or protective equipment, those rules always take precedence over this policy.

4 Our dress code

Our official dress code is smart casual. In some situations a different standard applies:

| Setting | Dress code | Examples and notes |
|---|---|---|
| Munich HQ and Berlin office, internal work | Smart casual | Chinos or slacks, shirts, blouses, knitwear, loafers, boots, clean sneakers. |
| Customer meetings, customer sites, audits, interviews, public appearances | Business casual or business | Slacks or skirt, shirt or blouse, jacket, closed shoes. A tie is not required. At customer sites also follow the customer's own rules and safety requirements. |
| Video calls with customers or candidates, including from home | Business casual (upper body) | Dress as you would for a meeting in the office. |
| Garching depot and device-staging warehouse | Practical workwear | Safety shoes and high-visibility clothing where required by the risk assessment. Personal protective equipment is provided free of charge (see NS-EHS-POL-003). |
| Frankfurt data center | Smart casual with closed shoes | No loose clothing or jewellery near equipment. |

An employee's position may also inform their dress code. If you frequently meet customers or prospects, you should conform to the business casual standard. Employees who cannot follow a rule for medical reasons, such as pregnancy or a health condition, or for religious reasons, should talk to their line manager or HR so that a suitable solution can be found.

5 Special occasions and Casual Friday

We may change the dress code in special cases. For example, we may ask employees to wear semi-formal attire for an event, such as the annual company event or a customer reception. In that case, we ask everyone to wear a suit or equivalent formal clothing (for example a suit, a dress or a blazer with matching trousers or skirt) and appropriate shoes. The invitation will say what is expected.

At Munich HQ and the Berlin office we also have Casual Friday, when employees can wear more casual clothing such as jeans, simple blouses and shirts, plain T-shirts, boots and sneakers. This does not apply if you are meeting customers, partners or other external parties on that day, or at the Garching and Frankfurt sites, where the rules in section 4 apply.

6 Disciplinary consequences

When an employee disregards the dress code, their line manager should speak to them in private and respectfully. The employee should start respecting the dress code immediately. In some cases, the manager may ask the employee to change their clothes, and where this is not possible at the workplace, to go home to change.

More severe consequences, up to a formal warning (Abmahnung) and, as a last resort, termination, may follow if:

- the employee repeatedly violates the dress code despite earlier conversations, or
- their appearance causes serious damage to the company, for example the loss of a major customer relationship.

Any such measure follows German employment law, and the Works Council (Betriebsrat) is heard before any termination.
